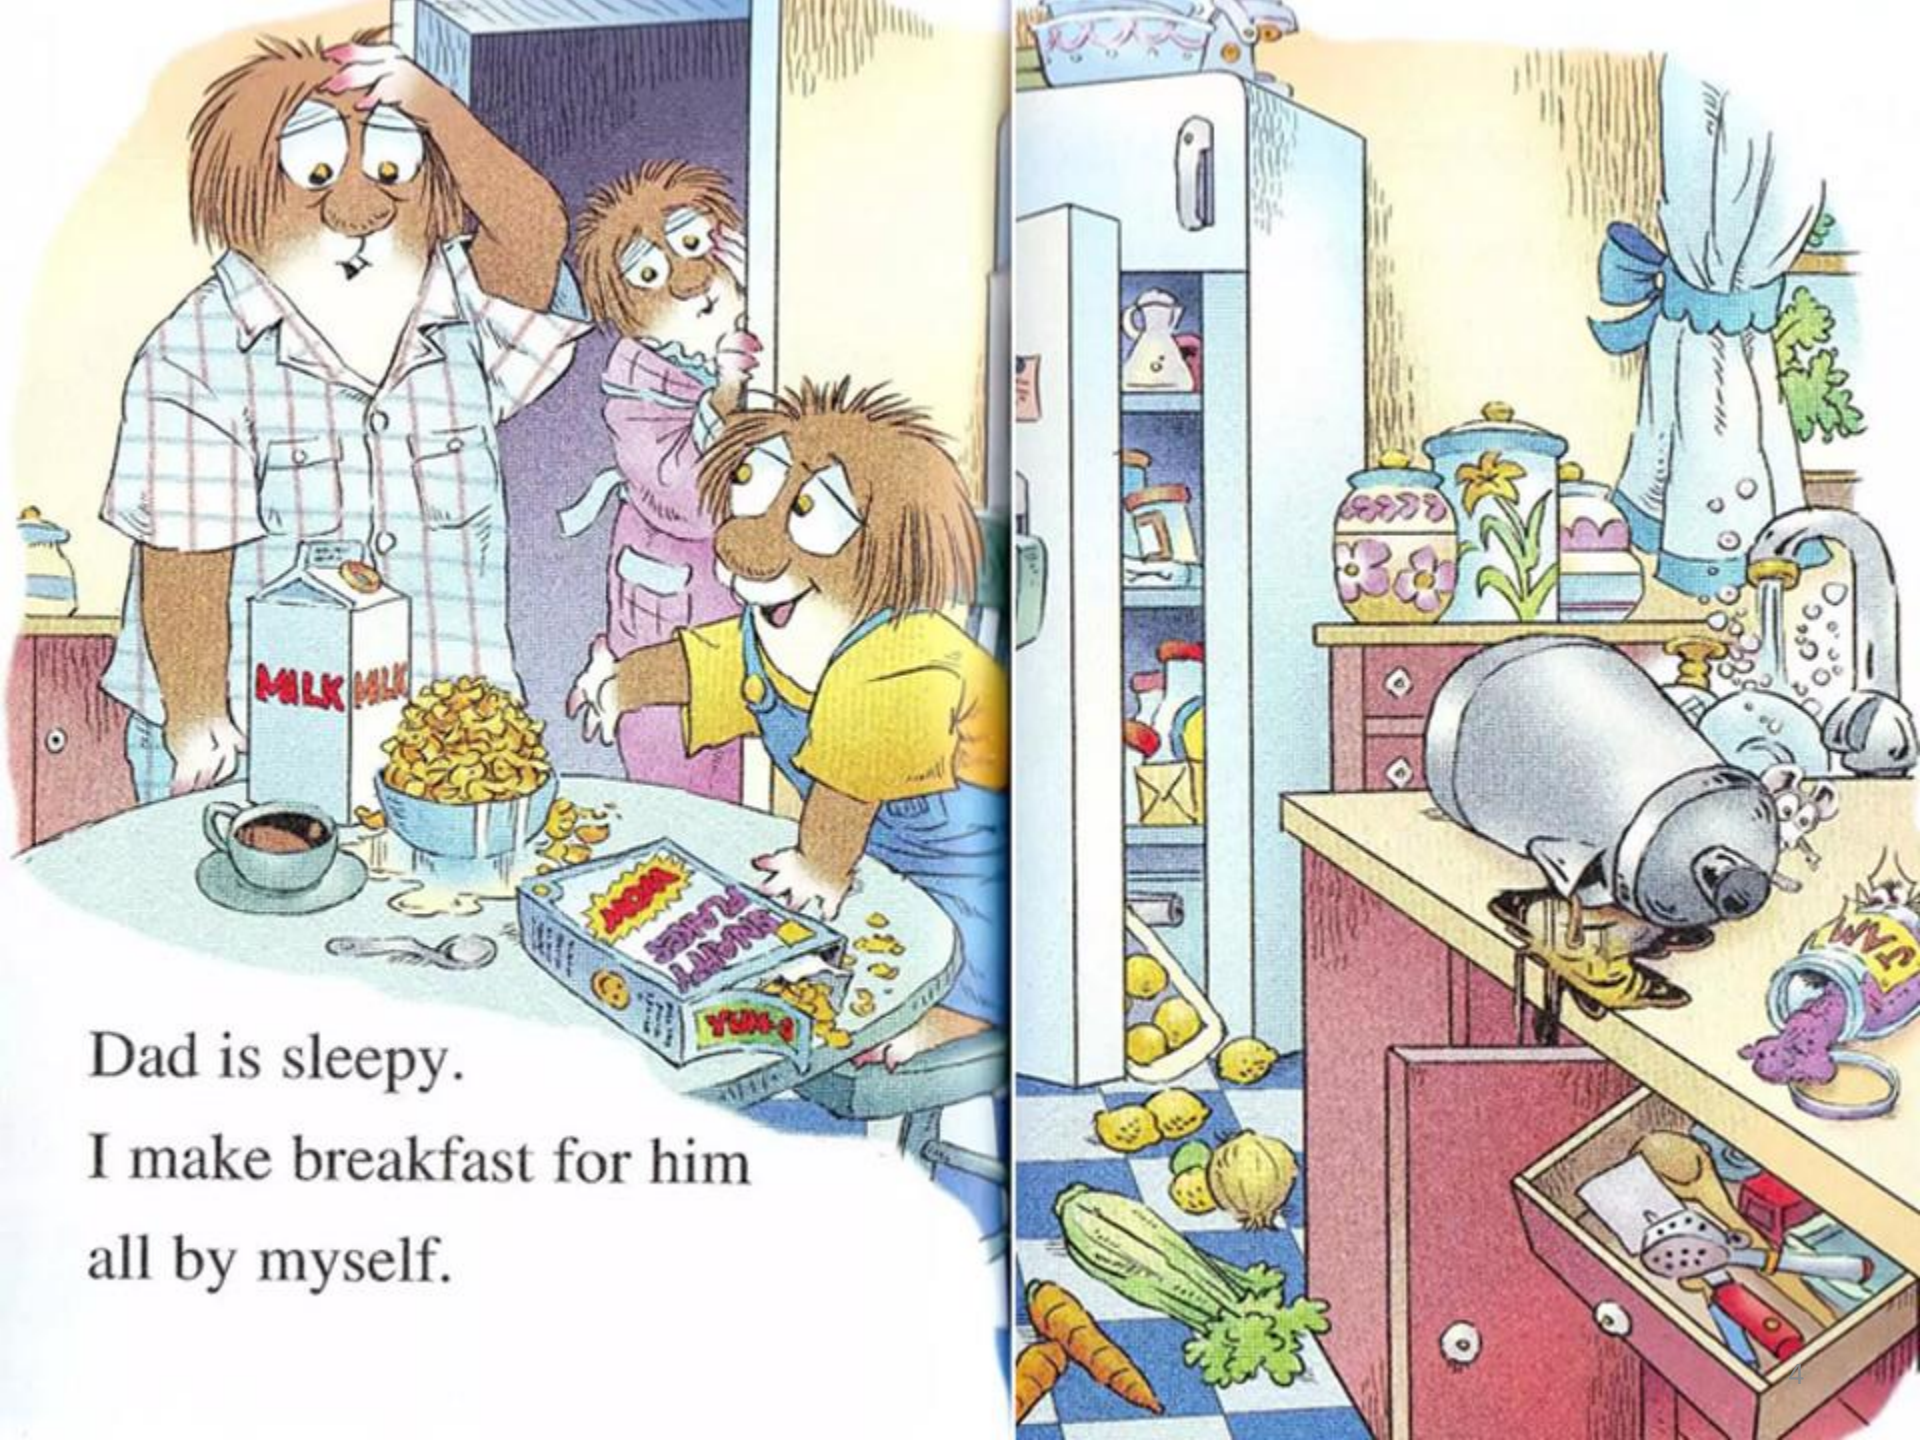
Dad is home today.

I will help my dad do things.

"Wake up, Dad," I say.

"We have work to do."



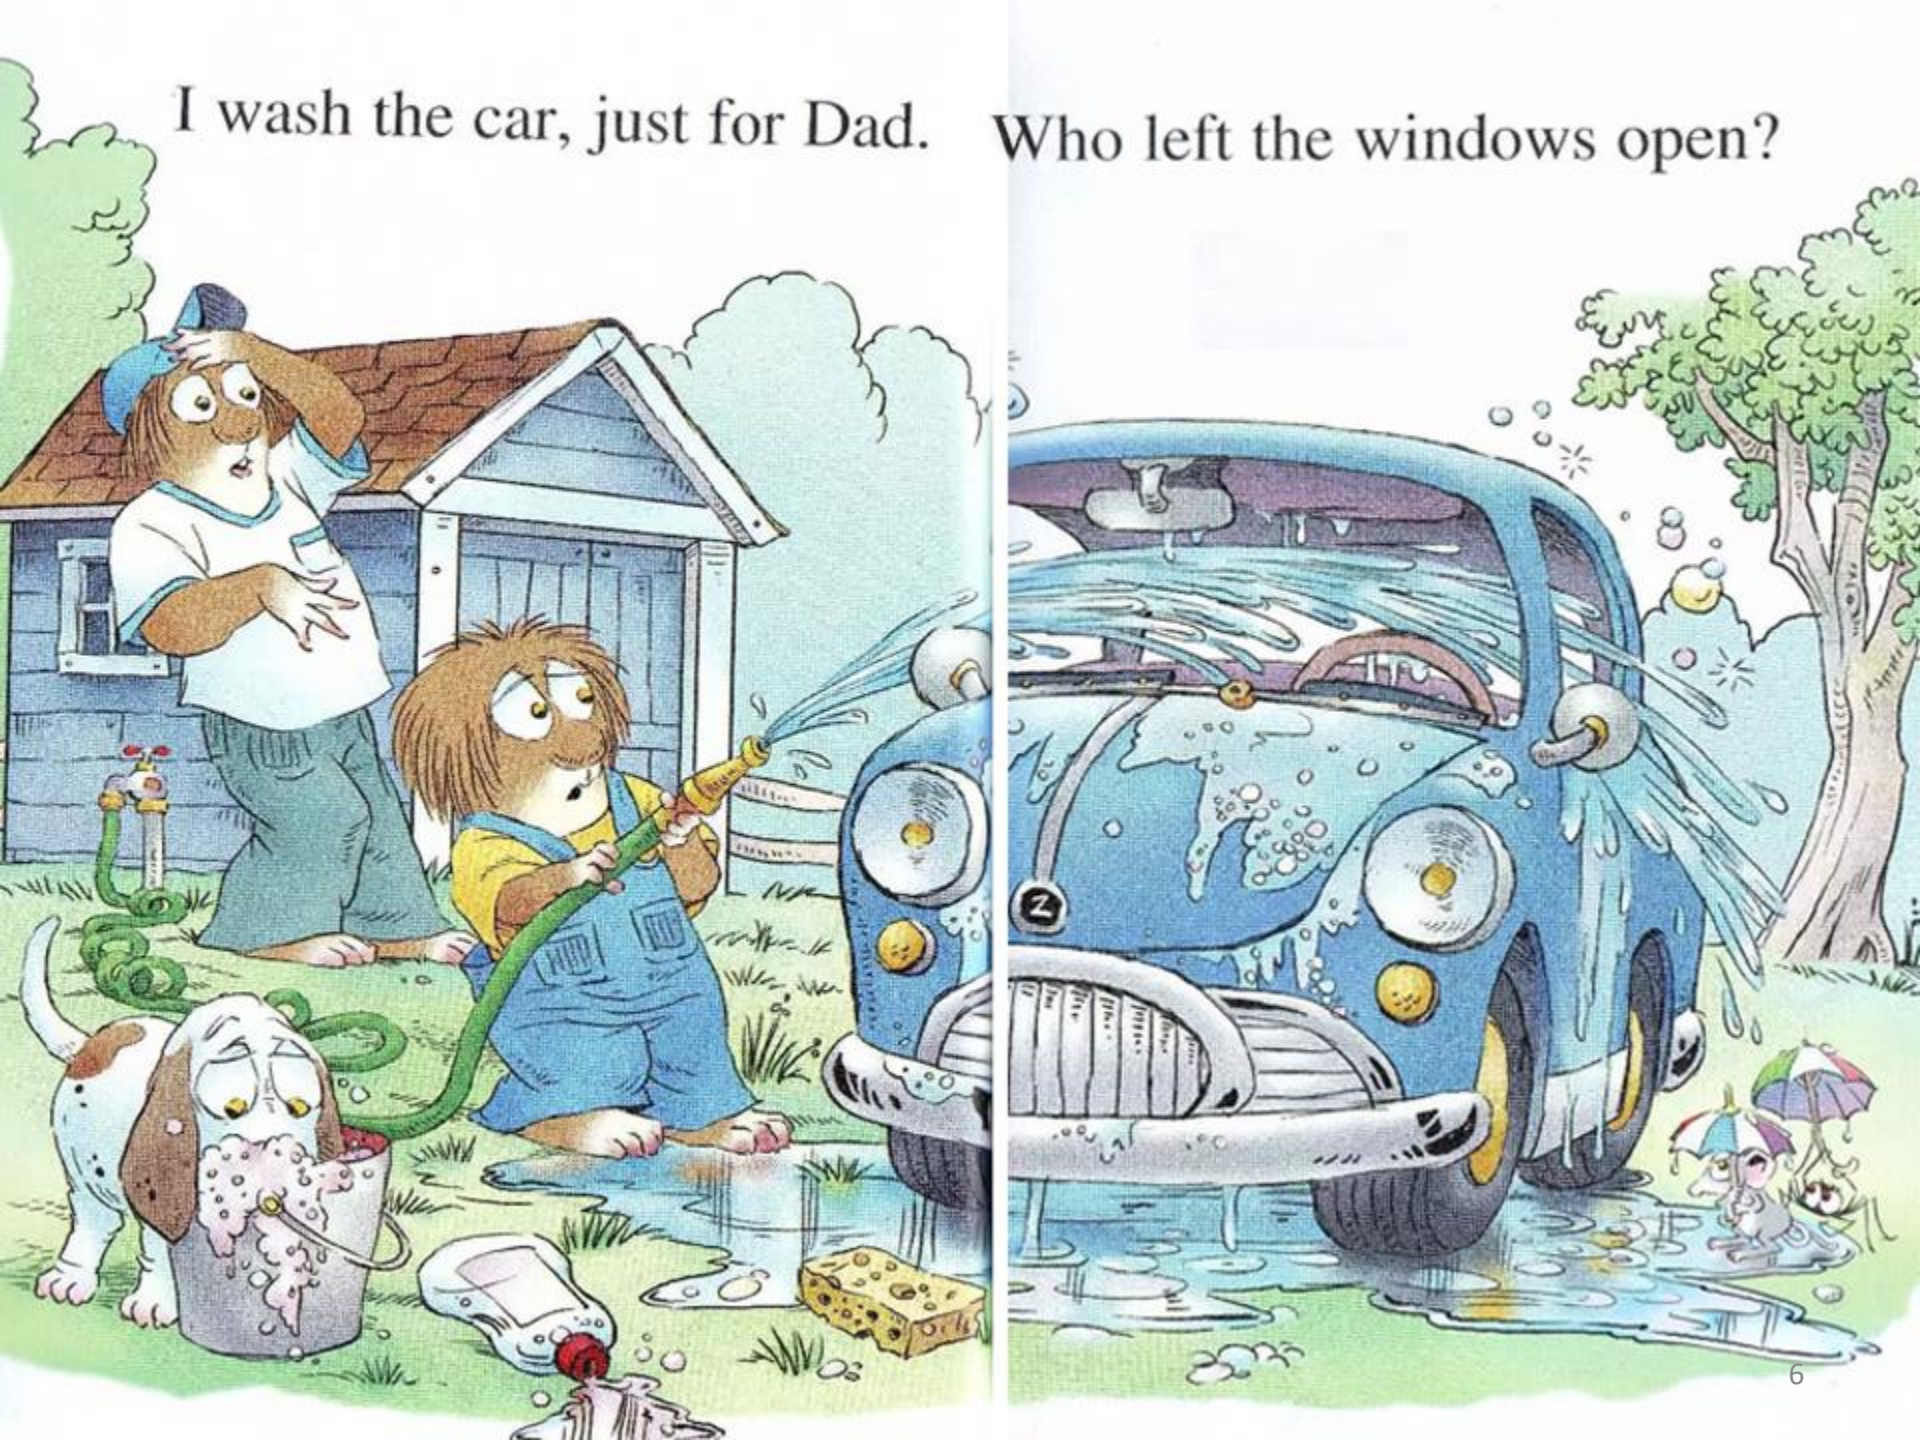
Dad is sleepy.
I make breakfast for him
all by myself.

I am helping Dad.
I cut the grass.

Oops! The mower got away!
"Sorry, Dad," I say.

I wash the car, just for Dad.

Who left the windows open?

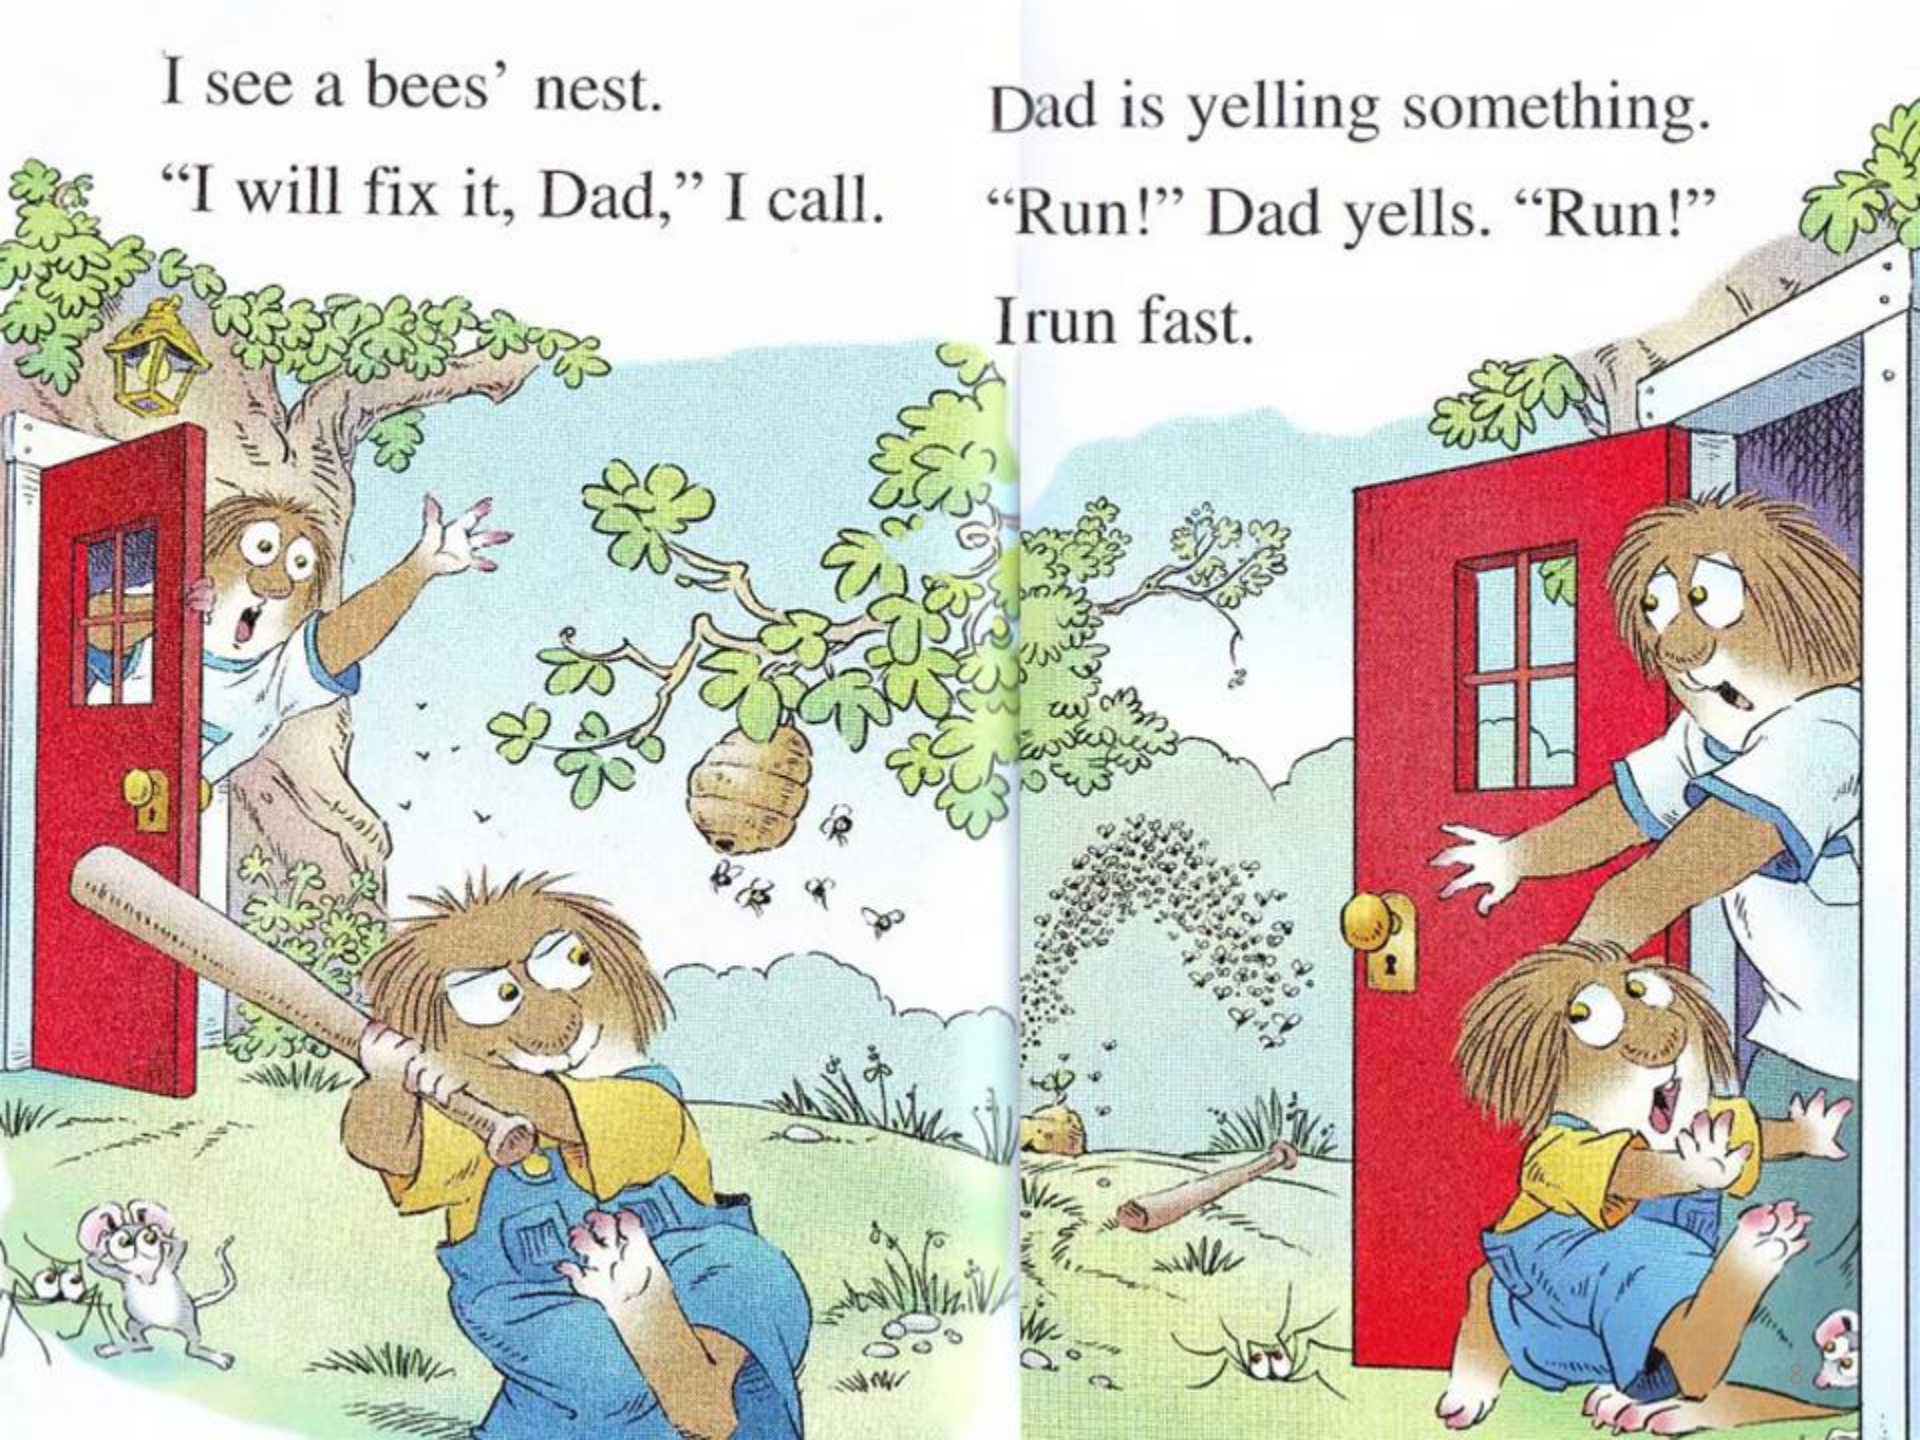


I can paint.

But Dad has to finish.

I see a bees' nest.

"I will fix it, Dad," I call.



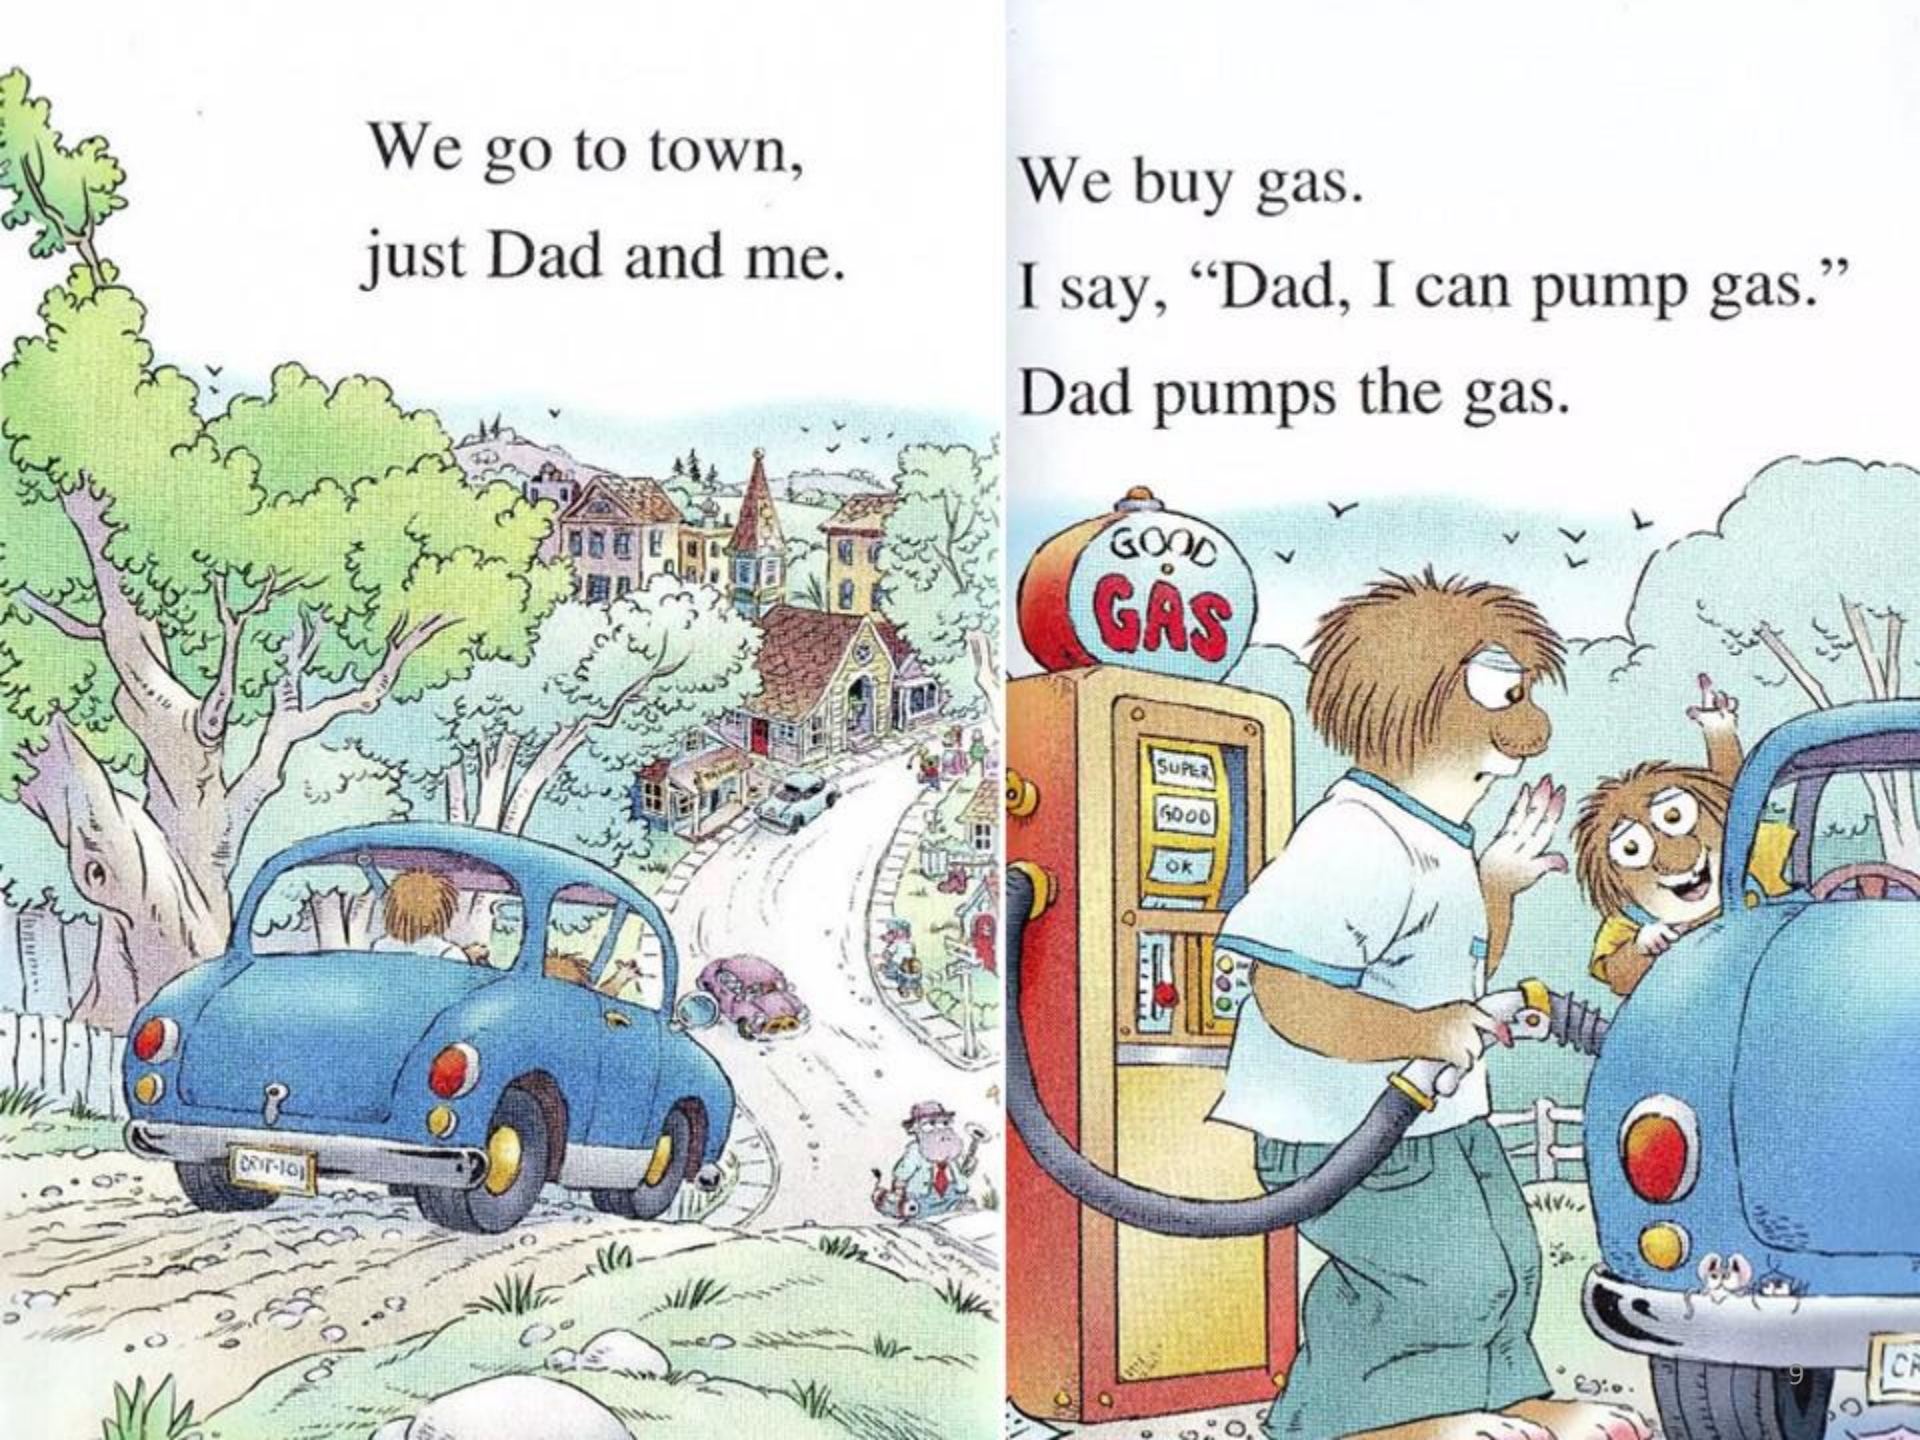
Dad is yelling something.

"Run!" Dad yells. "Run!"

I run fast.

We go to town,
just Dad and me.

We buy gas.
I say, "Dad, I can pump gas."
Dad pumps the gas.



We go to the store.

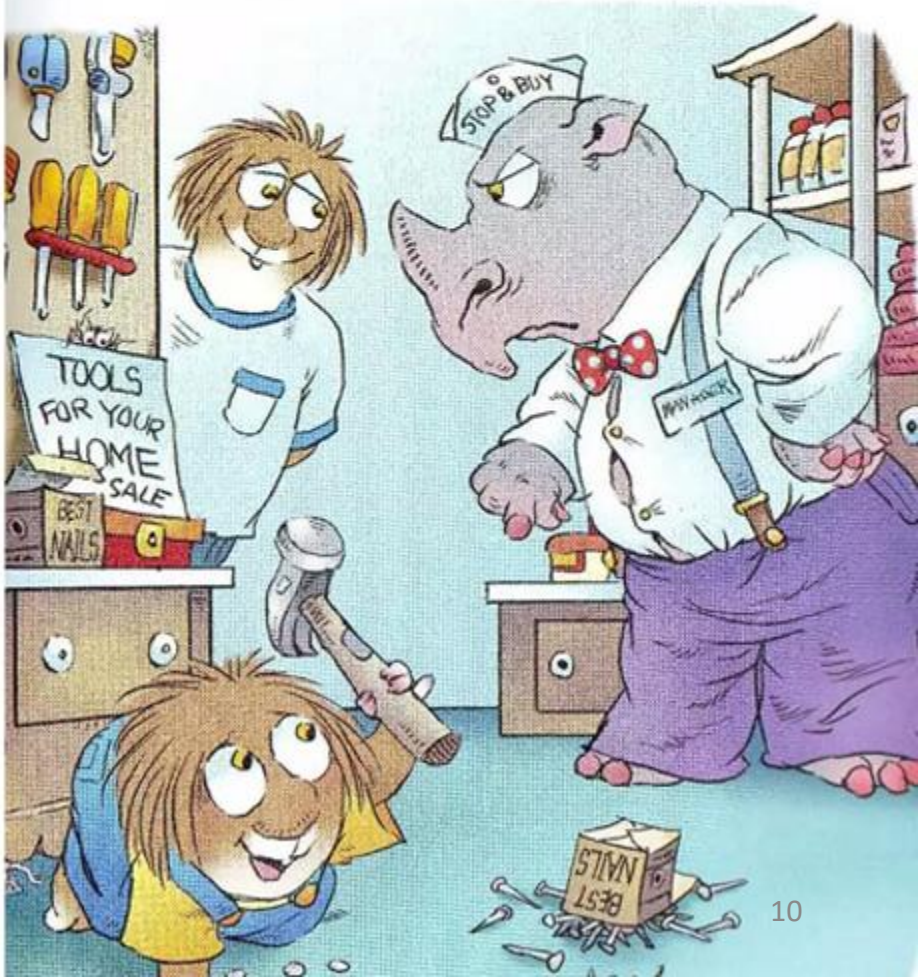
I get stuff for Dad.

"Too much, Dad?" I ask.

Dad needs a new hammer.

"This hammer really works!

Sorry about the nails," I say.



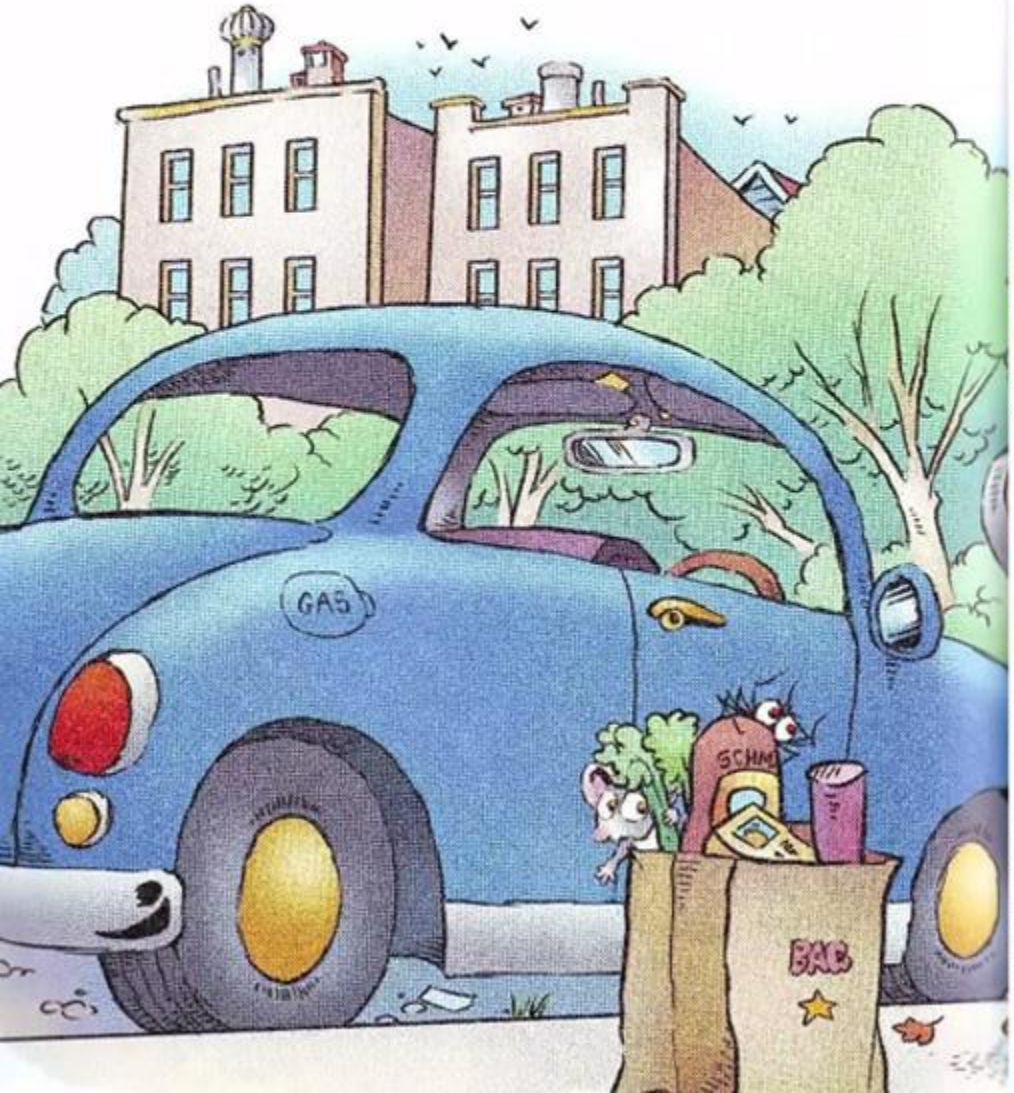
We get a parking ticket.

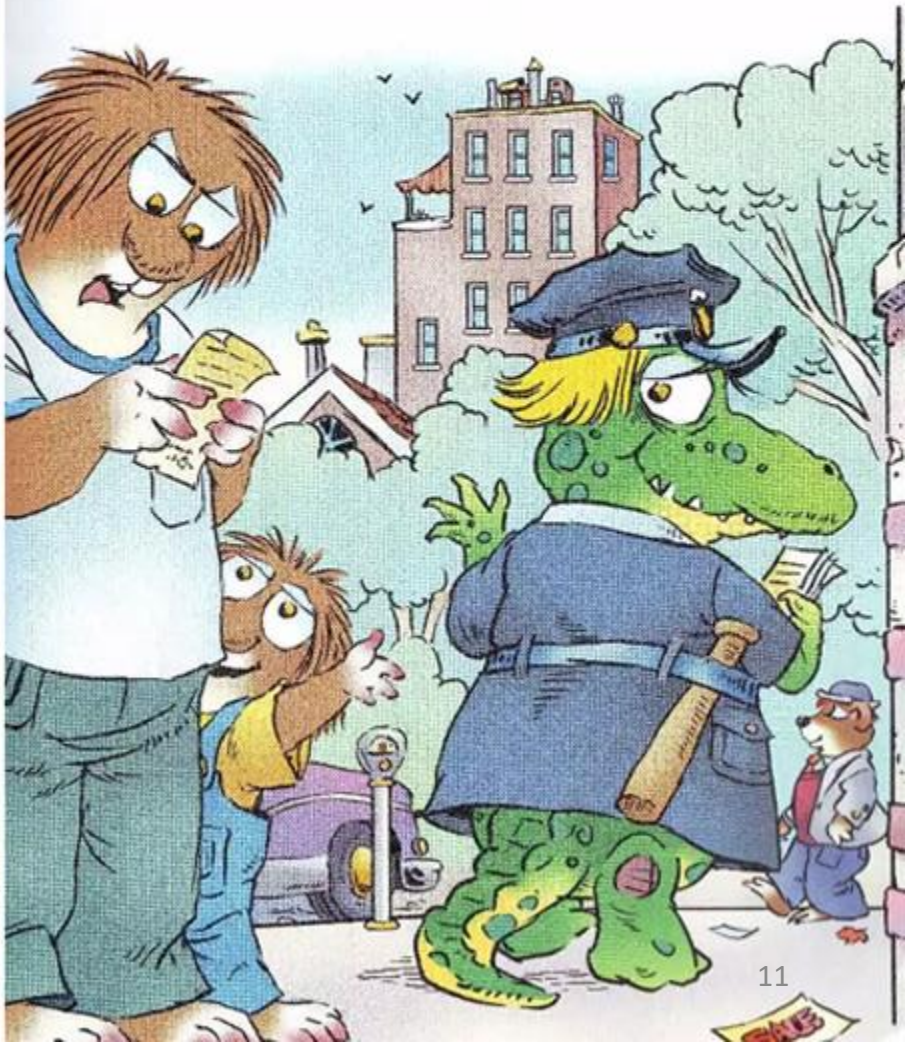
Dad does not look happy.

Dad says, "I am not mad,

just not happy."

I say, "That's fair, Dad."





We go home.

Mom says, “The toilet is broken.”

“I will fix it,” I say.

I can’t fix it. I call Dad.

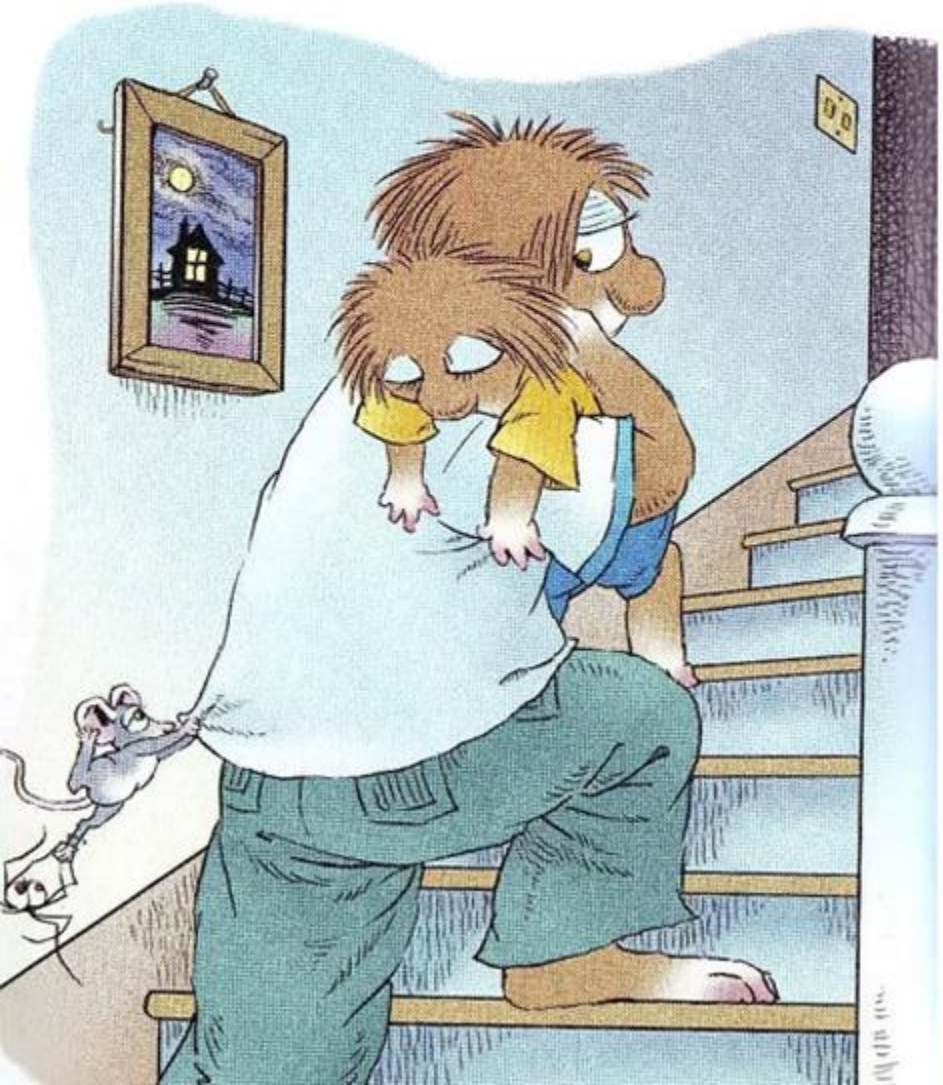
I forgot to turn off the hose.
I say, "That's okay, Dad.
Grass loves water!"

We have dinner. Then
Dad and I watch a movie.

Dad is tired.

It's time to sleep.

Dad tucks me in.



"Did I help you, Dad?" I ask.

Dad says, "Yes, you did.

Thank you."
